Forming Identity

KELVIN GRIVELL | PRINCIPAL

For those with a discerning eye, you will recently have seen our new 'Brighton' beach hut designs now painted on the Adelaide Road facade of Lighthouse Early Learning. Along with the coloured designs paying homage to our College colours, there are a twin of coastal huts (a sunset hue and a blue sky with seagulls) and the white and red of a lighthouse.

Some of you may have also seen the four numbers adorning the beach huts, each with a nod to our history. The numbers and meanings are:

78, the number of students on the very first day Encounter commenced;

2001, our first year as a school;

1517, the year of the Reformation, a year marking the beginning of the Lutheran Church; and,

8:12, a reference to John 8:12, a verse in the Bible declaring 'I am the light of the world'. This is a reminder that we can look to God for light, love and hope throughout our lives.

Now that Encounter is beyond its very formative years, we are now able to look both behind and forward. We look behind to give thanks to those who created and shaped what we now have. This has formed our identity and values and now helps to inform our decisions.

We look forward with excitement, enthusiasm and a desire to have our own legacy in what will be an even richer history in another decade, two or ten.

CONTINUED...

When I first arrived at Encounter, our current Year 12 students were in Foundation. Back then, we were still four years from having a graduating class. Next year will mark our tenth cohort of students who have left us having achieved their SACE, other qualifications and with futures shaped by our Encounter community.

As we continue to turn the pages of 2024, please know that each of your contributions are helping to shape the future, but also a past that will one day be reflected upon with gratitude.

What a privilege it is to be part of the journey.

Easter Blessings,

Kelvin

The Good Shepherd

EMILY PALMER | MIDDLE & SENIOR SCHOOL
TEACHER

Earlier this year I heard about a friend who was taking his four lambs to be slaughtered. Yet when it came time to get the lambs onto the van they wouldn't move, they were afraid! The little lambs had been hand raised and fed so our friend was able to walk up the ramp, calling them and leading them onto the truck and the lambs followed after him. They trusted him - unfortunately to their ultimate demise!

This slightly unsettling picture made me think about another shepherd who calls to his sheep by name - Jesus, however he is the GOOD shepherd! Speaking to the crowds Jesus said of himself in John 10:10-16:

"I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd gives His life for the sheep. But a hireling, he who is not the shepherd, one who does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and flees; and the wolf catches the sheep and scatters them. The hireling flees because he is a hireling and does not care about the sheep. I am the good shepherd; and I know My sheep, and am known by My own. As the Father knows Me, even so I know the Father; and I lay down My life for the sheep. And other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they will hear My voice; and there will be one flock and one shepherd."

What an incredible image, that Jesus who is GOD, would choose to lay down his life for his own people. We are so easily led astray by false leaders and scattered by the problems of this world, but Jesus offers to go looking for us and bring us back to His fold. He is a trustworthy shepherd and He seeks for his flock a community of love, joy and peace.

Emily

Wilderness Centre Experiences

JON GREAR | HEAD OF MIDDLE & SENIOR SCHOOL

Last week we provided an opportunity for College families to visit our brand new Wilderness Centre located on Wurur Ruwi. It was great to show people the various classrooms and learning spaces, as well as the opportunities for outdoor learning that lay literally outside the classroom doors. To gaze across the land and see the kangaroos bounding along the fence line, or the yellow-tailed black cockatoos lazily traversing the sky reminded all who were there what an amazing space this is, and how blessed we are to have access to it 24/7.

The teaching and learning experiences able to be found through the addition of the Wilderness Centre come to mind when I reflect on our vision as teaching staff in the Middle and Senior School years. Our vision is to ensure our students can creatively solve problems, work in interdisciplinary groups and environments and effectively communicate knowledge. Our students, using appropriate skills, will innovate, collaborate using real world experiences, develop the capacity to thrive in an evolving and emerging work world. Students will be active participants in their learning, and will demonstrate advocacy, empathy and care for their world. This vision is at the forefront of our minds when creating our teaching and learning plans.

Many things have changed since I completed my own schooling. My classrooms had us all sitting in rigid rows, I never accessed a computer throughout my secondary education, Year 9 was the first year I experienced air-conditioning in classrooms, and Liquid Paper was my friend when writing essays!

Now we focus on interdisciplinary learning in which we bring together concepts, methods, or forms of communication from two or more subject areas so that they can explain a phenomenon, solve a problem, create a product, or raise new questions. This might see students exploring science through baking bread, combining visual art with the use of digital technology, or even using our green screen in the Wilderness Centre to combine history with photography and filming. As adults we operate in a world in which our skills are rarely segmented into nice, neat packages. Working in retail combines numeracy skills, business acumen, and communication skills that we may learning in a combination of subjects such as Mathematics, Business Innovation, and English.

Employers are looking for potential employees who are capable of combining their range of skills with the task at hand. We know that finding content is often as easy as using our phone to google the answer. However, skills such as communication, research, social, self-management, and thinking skills are all proficiencies that employers desire in their employees, and these are skills that we can help teach in our subjects. We hope that not only through the Wilderness Centre, but in all our classrooms we can assist our students with skills that will place them in good stead when they eventually graduate and embrace the next stage of their lives.
